About

At Jack Murphy, we create beautiful, purposeful clothing that is made to last. A modern take on Irish heritage, each collection is characterised by quality, classic tailoring and reliability. Designed in Dublin, the rugged landscapes and changing weather of Ireland aren't hurdles but inspiration. From the durability of tweed to the modern waterproof styles, each product line reflects our commitment to quality, functionality, and timeless elegance.

Every garment carries Jack's personal signature of authentication, a seal of the high standards and quality craftsmanship that we vow to maintain. When you wear a Jack Murphy, you don't just wear a garment—you wear a story, a legacy, and a commitment to sustainable living. We hope that the joy and comfort you experience will be passed on to the next generation, just like our garments.

We invite you to experience the Jack Murphy difference—crafted with love, worn with pride, and passed down through generations.

For us, sustainability isn't a trend - it's a promise. Our dedication to creating lasting garments is deeply rooted in our operations and outlook. We adhere to the principles of slow fashion, prioritising longevity both in wear and in style. Each style is put through a rigorous process from design concept through to production, quality control in all aspects to ensure we are creating beautiful, purposeful clothing that is made to last.

Our make-to-order production line is a promise to our customers that we only proceed into production when we have guaranteed forward orders so we can ensure that there is no waste product.

We don't just talk about sustainability, we are committed to it. Each piece of clothing that bears our label is a testament to responsible crafting, from the quality fabrics we choose to the minimised waste in our production processes. We are creating clothing and a future that we can be proud of.

Rain Collection

Tailored rainwear is a staple of our collection, designed to provide the highest standard of protection against the elements. Each rain coat in our collection is 100% waterproof, and will stand the test of time and weather - we know because we have tested them. We only use the highest quality fabrics, and pay attention to the details making Jack Murphy globally recognised for our rain collection.

Digitally Printed Tweed

This season we are very excited to showcase our new digitally printed tweed waterproof collection. Based on the bestseller waterproof styles, Erin and Una, this new collection will offer you the same rain protection but with a stunning tweed check and herringbone design. The Sophia is showcased here in Navy windowpane digital print tweed design, and is the first of this new line. We will also be offering a longer version called the Hannah and a number of new tweed patterns. Please enquire for more information.

1922

Jack Murphy's journey into the garment industry was anything but ordinary. Born to a fish merchant in 1922, Dublin, Ireland, Jack joined the RAF as a radar controller. Stationed in Hiroshima, Japan during WWII provided him with a unique perspective on purposeful clothing and world culture. Upon returning, he began his career specialising in corsetry during the 1940s.

1947

Jack fine-tuned his expertise in women's garments at Leethams, a prestigious lingerie manufacturer in Dublin. Later, he moved to Skerries with his wife, Frances, setting up his own corsetry and lingerie business. There, he took his operation to the next level by merging his specialised knowledge in garment structure with functional design elements inspired by military attire.

The brand emerged as a natural progression from these diverse influences. Jack had laid the foundation for what would become a family business.

1987

Michael began expanding into outerwear, initially upcycling and reselling army surplus garments across Ireland. His travels, often characterised by unpredictable weather led him to identify a gap in the market for quality outdoor and camping gear. This would shape the future direction of the Jack Murphy brand, contributing to its evolution as a leader in fashionable, functional, and sustainable clothing.

2018

Jack Murphy was never just about clothes; it was about family, passion, and meticulous craftsmanship. Learning from Jack's legacy in corsetry, and Michael's experience in outerwear manufacturing, Sarah followed in her father's footsteps by joining him in 2018. Nearly 100 years since Jack was born, the brand that has taken his name has become recognised for quality and style both in Ireland and internationally.

Our journey has evolved, but our roots remain the same. From Jack's original focus on corsetry to Michael's pivot into outerwear, we have consistently strived for innovation while respecting our heritage. Now in its third generation, we've developed from Jack's beginnings, Michael's expertise to Sarah's contemporary leadership. Our core remains unchanged: timeless elegance crafted with an eye for detail.

Jack Murphy

TODAY

1973

In the early days of Jack Murphy's business, every aspect of garment creation was an in-house affair. Clothes were designed, cut, sewed, and packaged, all under one roof. Michael, 18 at the time, joined his father and began acquiring a range of skills, from pattern-making to distribution. This comprehensive approach ensured that Jack's signature blend of quality and style was embedded in each piece that left the factory.
